- BPA must carry out its responsibility to develop both energy efficiency and renewable energy in the Northwest.
- The Northwest has abundant clean energy resources, and the only thing needed to develop those resources is the political will of regional decisionmakers.
- To create tens of thousands of local, family-wage jobs; to provide farmers and ranchers with significant new sources of income; to augment county tax coffers and spur economic recovery; to protect consumers; and to safeguard our health and the environment, all regional load growth can and should be met with energy efficiency and renewable energy.
